Barnes' Atrocious Crime-One of His Pals Sent to the Penitentiary-Peter Louis Otto Hanged at Buffalo, N. Y., for the Brutal Murder of His Wife.

By Telegraph to the Post-Disparce.

Little Rock, Ark., May 21.—Lee Barnes was hanged at 11:30 a. m. to-day, at Dover, Ark., for the murder of Charles Hollman. A large number of persons witnessed the execution.

for the murder of Charles Hollman. A large number of persons witnessed the execution.

BARNES' CRIME.

On November 20, 1885, Charles Hollman and Lee Barnes, gamblers, living at Plummerville, Ark., arranged to attend a festival that was held some four miles distant. Before leaving home Barnes secured the co-operation of John Cullens and Russel Watson in a plot to accompany them, and during the night kill Hollman and take charge of his property, which consisted of a wagon and team, a "wheel of fortune" used for gambling purposes, and about $50 in cash. Late in the night and while Hollman was sleeping under the table on which the wheel of fortune was placed, Barnes drew a revolver and discharged two shots at him, both of which passed through the body near the region of the heart, and while in the agony of death Cullens, with an ax, struck him a fearful blow on the head. The body was then placed in a wagon and taken some distance to a lonely place in the woods and burled. Several days after the murder the burlial place was discovered by a hunter in passing near the spot, and the remains disinterred and identified as Hollman's. The murdered man being last seen in company with Barnes, Cullens and Watson, they were placed under arrest. After conviction and sentence Barnes made a full confession of his crime. Cullens was sentenced to twenty-one years in the Fenitentiary. Watson will have a hearing at the fall term of court.

The Hanging of Otto.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 21.—Peter Louis Otto, the wife murderer, was hanged at 10:261/2 the wife murderer, was hanged at 10:28½ o'clock this morning.

OTTO'S CRIME.

The murder was committed about 11:30 o'clock on the morning of November 14, 1884. Peter Louis Otto lived with his wife, Susan, and children and aged mother. The murderer, who was a candymaker, had been dissipated for years, and had been on a protracted spree at the time of the murder. He entered the house by the back door on the morning named and found his wife engaged in washing, by which she managed to earn a little money that was generally spent by him for drink. Without a word he drew a revolver and fired shot after shot at the defenseless woman. She rashed bleeding into the front part of the house and fell dying. She expired in a few moments without uttering a word. It was found afterward that five shots had taken effect, one in the right cheek below the eye, another in the left cheek, a third in the back of the neck, a fourth caused a firsh wound in the shoulder, and the fifth entered the back and lodged in the cavity of the chest. The murdered woman was about 35 years of age.

early as 8 o'clock a crowd of people gathered about the Tombs to see the prisoner off on his journey. Accompanied by a Deputy Sheriff, to whom he was handcuffed, Jaehne left the prison and entered a carriage, which was occupied by another Deputy Sheriff. The party was driven to the Grand Central Depot, where they took the 8 a. m. train for Sing Sing.

A dispatch from Sing Sing to-day states that Alderman Jaehne arrived safely at the State prison there and was at once put to work in the iaundry.

The train which brought ex-Alderman Jaehne from New York was met at the depot by a mob of a thousand men and boys, all anxious to see canvict No. 1 of the New York Board of Aldermen. Jaehne was hurried into a closed carriage and driven up the hill to the prison. He entered the somber gateway in company with three burglars and was made to answer the usual questions. The four prisoners were then ranged in line, Jeehne bringing up the rear, and with his right hand on the shoulder of the prisoner in front of him and his left hand resting against his side, the ex-Alderman took his first practice in the lock-step. He was then taken to the State shop, given a new prison suit, was shaved and had his hair cut, after which he was put in a celf. To-morrow he will begin starching shirts in the prison laundry.

dies of Grand Avenue Presbyteria Church will give a lawn party this afternoon and evening from 4 to 10 o'clock at the residence of Mr. Eugene Cuendet, he having offered his spacious grounds, corner Washington and Grand avenues, for the cocasion. The affair is under the management of Mrs. Wim. Price and Mrs. J. H. Wear for the benefit of the Central Mission of Fairfax avenue. The lawn has been enclosed with canvas, and a large headlight at the corner will afford ample light. From the trees are suspended a number of Japanese lanterns, very picturesque in effect, Spiering's orchestra has been installed in the pagoda, and pretty girls at the lemonade stand are driving a brisk trade, with Misses Pendleton Improved.

LINSEED OIL TROUBLES. The Collier Linseed Mill and Elevator Vir tually on the Market.

The withdrawal of the Collier Lead and Oil Company from the linseed oil business is being discussed among local oil men, and seems to and seed elevator at Seventeenth street and Clark avenue. The elevator is the only one in the city and the only one west of Chicago. The property upon which the buildings stand is the only property used for manufacturing purposes for a stretch of six blocks on the south side of Clark avenue. Upon the south side the elevator touches upon the tracks of the Union Depot Company and upon the north front on Clark avenue. The elevator and buildings would make good warehouses and it is understood the Union Depot Company has expressed a wish to buy. The officers of the Collier Company think they could sell the property with more profit than there would be in the operation of the mill. Recently a meeting of stockholders was called to authorize the sale in case a denite offer should be made for the purchase. For some reason, whether there is opposition among the stockholders to the sale is not known, the desired authorization was not given; but a further attempt is to be made to secure it.

There are three linseed oil mills in the city outside the Collier and there are sixty-five mills in the country west of Pittsburg. Formerly, when Kansas furnished the largest crop of seed St. Louis was the main seed market. Now a strip of country in Wisconsin furnishes the bulk of the seed which is marketed through Chicago. This seed is raised mainly by Swedes and some from the Mankato district has yielded two gallons of oil to the bushel, an exceptionally high yield. This has given the Chicago milis the advantage in competition, and the increase in the number of mills has reduced the price overywhere. The yearly yield of the country is about 450,000 barrels, which is too much for the demand and the over plussage goes into New York, where St. Louis oil sells as cheaply as it does here. An effort was made to pool the mills a week or ten days ago but the largest build not be formed without it. Had that plan succeeded the price might have been raised to a figure high enough to make the manufacture of oil profitable; failing to form and seed elevator at Seventeenth street and Clark avenue. The elevator is the only one in be Buffalo, N. Y., mill stood out and the pool could not be formed without it. Had that plan succeeded the price might have been raised to a figure high enough to make the manufacture of oil profitable; failing to form the pool the market has gone to pieces.

Alex Euston, Secretary of the Collier Company, said: "We are not authorized to sell the property by the stockholders, but expect we will be. The truth is the linseed oil business is no longer profitable. Five years ago when our elevator was built there was some money in it. Now there is none. The competition is too strong. Sixty-five mills west of Pittaburg make more oil than the painters or any other class of consumers want. The price has been steadily going down. If we do sell the mill and elevator we may not retire permanently from the business, but when it picks up go into it again. We may then build a mill in some other part of the city."

"Have you an offer for the elevator and mill?"

"No; and I really don't know that any one wants to buy. We heard some railroad people wanted to buy and have been trying to get in shape to consider an offer, should one be made. They will not store seed or make oil there. If the mill is sold it will be to people who want to use it for warehouse purposes."

TOOK SULPHUBIC ACID. The Strange Suicide of James J. Mullarky

in Chicago. CHICAGO, May 21 .- A well dressed young may James J. Muliarky and claimed to be from Cleveland, Ohio, rented a room at 72 North State street last Monday. Testerday Muliarky did not appear and his landlord forced in the door of his room. He found the occupant lyon the bed with his clothes on, dead. A bottle labelled "sulphuric acid" told the tale of self-destruction. The right hand tightly clasped a photograph of a beautiful brunette.
Two other pictures of good-looking young ladies were found, one on the floor and the other

"Have you a picture of Mr. Prelier?"
"Yes sir." The witness here brought out the sample case which opened with double doors, disclosing plush lining and gilt frame, in which was a painting of a good-looking young man in oil. It was shown to the jury.

Mr. Frazer said it had been pronounced an excellent likeness; it was made by an assistant and painted by himself.
"Have you seen any other photograph of Mr. Preller?"

Mr. Frazer was then examined by Mr. Clover as to his visit to St. Louis. He described this visit, which took place in the second week in September, the day he had forgotten. He said he visited the cemetery with Messrs. McDonald, Clover, Newbold, the artist, and Bishop. Objection was again made by Mr. Fauntieroy as irrelevant testimony. Mr. Frazer described the visit to the cemetery, the uncarthing of the casket and opening of it.

He said that considering the time since death the body was remarkably well preserved.

Another photograph was shown and identified.

Mr. Frazer was asked if he was positive that the body he saw at the cemetery was that of C. A. Preller.

"I am absolutely certain," was the reply. During the testimony Mr. Frazer said in answer to a question that he had mentioned the existence of the scar while driving to the cemetery and at the casket called the attention of the gentlemen present to it. "There was not?"
"Not that I know of. I had reason to believe that the only person connected with the defense was the driver."

He was asked about the baggage incident.

"All I remember is that two rather young looking men called with regard to a piece of baggage due over the Wabash & Grand trunk joint. There was one check for one piece of baggage. When the check was presented I told them that the baggage was probably held for customs duty. The road runs through Canada and the United States."

"Did you notice the parties particularly?"

"I did not. They were young-looking, well-dressed and the one who spoke had a peculiar accent—seemed to be Canadian. One of them was anxious about the baggage and seemed much put out at not finding it."

The witness knew nothing about one of the parties searching through the baggage-room for the box. He was excused without cross-axamination.

"Look at the prisoner," said Mr. McDonald,
"and see if you have seen him before."
"I think I have but am not absolutely certain."
"When?"
"About the 1st of April, in 1885."
"How did you happen to notice him."
"I saw him as he went out of the door. I did not wait on him."
"What did he want?"
"I understood from the clerk that he wanted chloroform, but he did not get it."
"Did you see him again?"
"Yes, he came back again several days after."
"The witness said some one was with him at the second visit, but he did not know who. He obtained some Vichy and ammonia. After several unimportant statements the witness was excused.

DETECTIVE JAMES TRACY took the stand. It will be remembered that Tracy went to Auckland and brought back Maxwell. He was acting as detective in March and April, 1885. He remembered the cocasion of the body being found at the southern Hotel and saw the baggage purporting to be that of one Preller. The baggage was found in room 385. The witness did not remember finding any valuables or jewelry in the baggage.

"Do you remember any letters being found in the trunks?"
"I do."
Mr. Bishop took a package of letters from his pocket and showed them to Mr. Tracy who identified them as the letters found in the trunks. The shirt, out and blood-stained, and the drawers found on the corpse, with the smoking-cap, hat, straps and other articles were laid on the big trunk, but were listlessly scanned by the spectators with the exception of some who had never seen them before and whose faces expressed curiosity and horror.

"Do you know the defendant, Mr. Tracy?"

"Where?"

"On ship-board in mid-ocean."

"What property was turned over to you with the prisoner?"

"One trunk, one canvas valise, one leather valise and one hat-box."

These articles were identified. Tracy said that these pieces of baggage were opened in the office of the Chief of Police. This conversation took place between Maxwell and Tracy:

"I asked him, said Tracy, if this was his property, showing it to him, "and he acknowledged the ownership."

A revolver and key, a chain of gold and silver and a flute were identified as being found in Maxwell's possession.

Mr. Fauntleroy tried to make the point that Tracy found the articles in the baggage of Maxwell but not in his possession to his certain knowledge, but Tracy replied that Maxwell acknowledged their ownership. A diamond ring, the smoking cap, hat bought of Hart & Duff, the hat band which was found in the trunk, jewelry and a silver watch were identified.

Detective Tracy said that he asked Maxwell where he got the watch, and he replied: "In San Francisco." He said he had traded his own watch and 50 for it. A gold watch was shown and the witness said that Maxwell told him he had got the watch from a man named McDonaid, to whom he had loaned $80 and whom he met at the Paince Hotel. Maxwell said that he had been swindled—a confidence game had been played on him.

A gray dressing coat, case of drawing instruments, a douche, a letter-case, Prelier's shoe, a book with "T. C. D'Aquier' written in it, were produced.

Hunning comments were made by the witness as for instance, he said that the letter case had something scratched out and W. H. Lenox-Maxwell written on it. The diploma of the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons was identified. The tag with "Cephalonia" mark, and a draft of the diploma in lead pencil in Maxwell's hand writing were also identified.

The cipher letter and envelope addressed to the Minister of Police found in the trunk was slown and the Minister of Police found in the trunk was shown and identified.

"Did you have any conversation with the prisoner about it?"

"Yes."

"Hasked him what the letter was and he said it was a letter addressed to a gentleman in Paris. He said: "I thought I had mailed that in San Francisco." I asked him to enlighten me as to its contents, but he failed to do so."

Mr. Fauntleroy objected to the admission of the letter unless what was in it could be read. He wanted to know what it hadtood with the the allases that Maxwell had assumed.

"Did you ask his name?"

"Yes, he said his name was Theodore Oecil D'Auquier; that he was born in Paris, but his parents had moved to Scotland. He said he had traveled in Scotland, England and France.
He was educated by a tutor while traveling with his family. I asked him whether the photograph he had was his and he said yes, but it was taken about eight years before while practicing law in the Temple, London. The robe he wore was his legal robe."

"Did you ask him his business?"

"Did you ask him his business?"
"Yes, he said he was an attorney."
Some little amusement was occasioned by Mr. Tracy's attempts to describe Maxwell's accent.
"What language did the prisoner speak?"
asked Mr. Bishop.

"What language did the prisoner speak?"
asked Mr. Bishop.
"He spoke a broken English."
"Can't you imitate or describe it. You were with him some time."
"Well, when he used the word 'the' he said
'zee.' I asked him why he did not drop his accent and speak in his own language, and he said he could not say 'the'". This was greeted with a burst of laughter which was instantly suppressed.
"What was the prisoner's nationality?"
"He said his father was French and his mother was Irish."
"Did you hear any conversation between the prisoner and others in French?"
"I heard some parties address him in what I took to be French. Once, in the Police Court in Frisco, a gentleman saddressed Maxwell in French and Maxwell said he only spoke a patois. The gentleman said he also spoke a patois, and Maxwell declined to talk to him in patois."

Some clothing found in Maxwell's baggage patols. And Maxwell declined to talk to him in patols."

Some clothing found in Maxwell's baggage was identified. Cuffs marked "C. A. P.," towels marked "Southern, 1885." and a pair of drawers turned wrong side out and marked "C. A. P.," an undershirt cut into pleces and a linen shirt cut and slashed and marked "C. A. P.," and a plece of suspender were identified as among Maxwell's baggage. "Were these articles asparate or together?" was asked.

"They were rolled up together and in the center of them was a pair of scissors." The scissors were identified.

"How were they wrapped up?"

"The under clothing was wrapped in the white shirt and the bundle was tied with one of the towels, marked 'Southern, 1885.".

The importance of this testimony seemed to be appreciated by jury and spectators, and created something of a sensation, particularly the articles marked "C. A. P." The clothing was offered in evidence.

Mr. Fanutieroy asked for the privilege of cross-examining the witness before the articles were taken in evidence. He wanted to find out what threats had been made to get the articles were taken in evidence. He wanted to find out what threats had been made to get the admissions he obtained from the prisoner. Mr. McDonald said the prosecution preferred to continue the examination and the defense could aramine the examination and the defense could aramine the elothes or the witness afterwards as much as they pleased. The prosecution would take sway the clothes if the defense wanted it.

Mr. Faunteroy said he didn't care about the clothes and Mr. McDonald could put them on and exhibit them if he wanted to. Re said the lake of Mr. McDonald was buncombe and claptrap, and there was quite a squabble over the matter.

Was there any conversation between you and the prisoner about the clothes?' asked Mr. Bishop.

The Court said he had sat through the examination of the witness and the identification of the clothes waiting for an objection from the counsel for the defense, but none had come, and now when everything was over there was an objection. The Court ruled that the prosecution could continue and the matter of the clothes would be decided afterwards.

Some further attempts on the part of Mr. Fauntileroy to argue the matter was severely sat down upon by the Court. He did not want any buncombe or claptrap.

"Maxwell stated that he had received them from a man named Robinson in San Francisco in answer to a question as to where he had gotten them."

"Was this in reference to all the clothes?"

"Did you, Mr. Tracy, at any time or under any ofreumstances, with reference to anything, make any threats or hold out any inducements to the prisoner to make any admissions or to answer any question?"

"Inever did while I was with him. I always treated him kindly."

"Now I will ask you if you ever had any conversation with the prisoner as to what he did or where he stayed in San Francisco."

This question was twice put, the counsel for the defense objecting, in order to settle as to how Mr. Tracy obtained his admission from the prisoner. Mr. Fauntileroy was given the witness for a time.

"You were not in Auckland when the prisoner arrived there."

"You recognize the fact that no identification amounts to anything which was received by hearsay?"

The question asked by Mr. Bishop was returned to, and Mr. Tracy continued:

"I said to Maxwell: Walter, they tell a pretty hard story on you in San Francisco. They say you 'bliked' that little girl Gracie that you visited. He said: 'I did nothing of the kind. I bought a bottle of wine and settled with her.''

"Did he say anything else?"

"He said he had a good time—took in

"Did he say how long he stayed in San Francisco?"

"Two days and a half."

"Did he tell you where he went to San Francisco from?"

"St. Louis,"

"Did he say where he stopped in St. Louis?"

"No; he did not admit that."

A picture of Prelier was here shown the witness and he was asked if he had shown it to the prisoner. He said yes, and he had asked him if he recognized it, and Maxwell replied that he had a bad memory, that perhaps in two months he would not know his (Tracy's) photograph. With regard to his acquaintance with Prelier he said that he had met him in Liverpool and that he saw him last in Boston. The Court then adjourned for lunch until 2:30 o'clock.

The Court then adjourned for lunch until 2:30 o'clock.

THE AFTERNOON SESSION.

The court-room was packed this afternoon by a sweltering crowd. At 1:35 order was called and Detective Tracy resumed the witness-stand, and the identification of the property found in Maxwell's baggage was continued. The field-glasses which Maxwell purchased here and wore on his trip West were recognized, and an album containing a number of pictures was identified. The witness said the erasures were on the pictures when he first saw the album. The witness was asked to bind up the clothing belonging to Prelier as he had found them. He rolled up the drawers and undershirt with the scissors in the center and then wrapped a towel around the bundle.

"This is the way it was done," said he.

"How soon did you begin to have conversations with the defendant?" asked Mr. Bishop.

"The second day out."

"Did he talk freely!"

"Not altogether, sir."

"Idid. I asked him once how much money he had when he left St. Louis and he said about $1,000, I asked him what he had done with it and he said he had spent it in St. Louis, on the trip, in San Francisco and on shipboard. I said he surely could not have spent all of it and he said 'You will have to ask my counsel, Napler, what became of the rest. He got the last $180 I had." He said that his money was in large bills, small bills and gold."

Some further testimony as to the where Maxwell got the jeweiry and field glass was given, He told Tracy he bought them in St. Louis.

THE VISITORS.

Ladies in Numbers in the Court-Room-A

Texas Delegation. All of the available space to the left of the Judge n the room of the Criminal Court this morning was filled to the brim with girlish giee. There were more of them there than on any previous day of the trial. They were very pretty too-some of them. They filled the twelve extra jury seats and two rows of the twelve extra jury seats and two rows of chairs in front of them and extended in a semi-circle to the gateway of the bar. There were a half dozen or more who could not find seats inside located in the general gathering in the auditorium. The little Casino made its contribution to the galaxy in the persons of the Gilmore sisters, Drucle and Carrie. On either side of the reporters' table sat Gov. Oharles P. Johnson and Commodore Lyndon A. Smith, living embodiments of the old "before and after taking" legends. Gov. Johnson seemed greatly amused at the cross-examination of the witness. Frazer.

dore Lyndon A. Smitz, fiving emodelments of the old "before and after taking" legends. Gov. Johnson seemed greatly amused at the cross-examination of the witness, Frazer. He placed his hand over his mouth to hide his smiles, and conducted a subdued but hilarious conversation with the criminal attorney McBride, ho stood behind him with his head on the Goyernor's shoulder.

Henry Tuerbach represented the Mechanics' Exchange in the privileged portion of the assembly.

A party of gentlemen from Texas and elsewhere sat about the prisoner, engaging him in a general conversation. They were Col. I. J. Timberlane of Sherman, G. M. Casey of Clinton, Henry County, Texas, and Judge T. G. Casey, Prosecuting Attorney of Howard County, Mo. Drs. Franklin and Adams of the city occupied chairs to the rear of the defendant. Dr. John J. Papin of Las Vegas, and formerly of this city, was also present. A. Gehner, the wholesale liquor dealer, was there. Wm. H. Soudder of the Southern Hotel came in shortly after the court came to order. Wr. L. I. Clark with his wife and its

the girl, were given seats just back of the prosecution.

Outside the bar the crowd augmented and waxed warm. It was by far the largest of the trial. The people pushed and elbowed each other in the aisies, filling them densely. Two police officers who tried to enter the room by the south-side passage abandoned the attempt and went round by the rear entrance. At 10:30 o'clock the room was reeking.

THE JUPGE
instructed the deputies to open the windows wide. They had been partially closed to keep out the rattle of the wagons on the granite street, and when the refreshing flood of fair came through them the people took such long and audible draughts of it and craned and leaned so for a touch of the invigorating breeze that the deputy rapped on his pulpit and cried, "sit down there. Then the crowd slowly settled back and sneezed by file and platoon.

John A. Scudder, of the Anohor Line came in pulpit and cried, "sit down there." Then the crowd slowly settled back and sneezed by file and platoon.

John A. Scudder, of the Anchor Line came in about 10:45, and Dr. T. Hardy Smith brought the cane that was given to him at the last doctors' meet. Councilman J. A. Seddon and Superintendent McCormick of the Ligget & Meyer Tobacco Company had seats at the second table. Others came in and the place grew so crowded that Col. Martin surrendered his seat to Lawyer Tom Hogan who had come all the way from Chicago to hear the trial. City Marshal Martin Neiser sat over by the ladies.

What a sensation there was when Tracy, the detective who went to Auckland for the little prisoner, came from the attornsy's room with Mr. Bishop! And again when Mr. Mo-Donald came through the door with the bundle of bloody towels and other stuff found in the baggage of Maxwell when captured. The detective smiled grimly in greeting to some of the officers of the court and the facial play wrinkled his cheeks as if the face were of leather. There was just a suggestion of the 'hunter' in the forward set of the head and the sturdy neck that connected it with the wiry frame. The people 'hunched' their chairs and the reporters took new grips on their pencils. It seemed accepted that a sensational part of the proceedings was to begin.

Tracy answered like an old witness. There was nothing of pod in his replies and no doubt in his testimony.

avenue at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning by shooting himself through the head. Charles Wright testified, that on Wednesday morning the deceased passed where he lives, near the foot of Talcott avenue, and inquired of him if any white woman with two children had come to live in the neighborhood in the past few days. The witness told him that a white woman and two children had come to live in the neighborhood with a blind colored man named Moses Phillips. Deceased said his wife had left home a few days before with their two children, and that he had been told she was living with Felt. He sighed heavily, and when told that he appeared to be in deep trouble, said he was and walked away. A few minutes later Wright heard the shot that put an end to the man's life. Mrs. Annie Boylan, the white woman, who, with her two children, lives with the blind negro, testified she never saw the deceased until after he was dead and knew nothing about him. She said the colored man's name was Moses Phillips, and not Felt. S. C. Shockey identified the body and said Conroy was a lithographer and has been working for Woodward & Tiernan He had been drinking hard, and his wife and child left his home on Elliott avenue, near Montgomery street, recently, and went to Louisville, and since then he had been drinking harder than ever. Suicide was the verdict.

The body of Mrs. Kittlehake, the woman who committed suicide in St. Charles, Mo., a week or two ago, was found this morning floating in the river at the foot Talcott avenue. The Coroner had the body removed to the Morgue. When she drowned herself Mrs. Kittlehake had her infant in her arms and the child must have also been drowned with her. The unfortunate woman was deranged in mind.

An inquest was commenced to-day on the body of the unknown man killed at Cheltenham Wednesday by a locomotive. James J. Stanley, an eye-witness, said the deceased had stepped from the south track to the north track to avoid an incoming freight train, but an engine and caboose were coming up on the north track and struck him.

oy's Scheme for Sprinkling the City Streets-City Hall Notes. ofiman Ed Devoy has a scheme

Councilman Ed Devoy has a scheme for sprinkling the streets. Counselor Bell is embodying this scheme in an ordinance. The gist of it is this: The water rates amount to $800,000 per year, which is more than is necessary for the maintenance of the department. Reduction of the rates has been talked of. Mr. Devoy proposes to increase the rate 20 per cent on house holders and a proportionate amount on factories and large consumers. This would give a revenue of about $140,000 per year, enough to thoroughly sprinkle the streets and leave a balance in the treasury to be credited on the next year's account. In a year or two Mr. Devoy figures the rates could be reduced to the present figure and there would be still enough money to sprinkle the streets. Householders who have their streets sprinkled by contractors now pay an average of $9 per year. Under Mr. Devoy's plan he estimates they would not pay the city more than $2 per year. Assessor Mott received a telegram this afternoon informing him of the death of his mother in Washington, D. C., at lo'clock this afternoon. She had not been ill to his knowledge, and the shocking news was quite unexpected. Mrs. Motthas lived in Washington twenty-seven years, and was nearly 70 years old. She lived with her son, Mr. Geo. Beerbohm quoted 2d advance in California, but this was said to be due to a squeeze, in that particular quality, and the market otherwise was quiet, with only spot firm. R. S. McCormick & Co. 2 private cable from Fohroke. New York, reads: "Wheat firm, but not much business passing." This seems to Indicate that English markets are not responding to our advance as it was thought they would. That they want and will buy from America seems assured a subject of the seems assured as the seems weeks are the smallest in the crop year, thereby greatly reducing the supplies, which can hardly be sustained for the time, excepting by purchases in Atlantic or interior American markets. But whether English buyers would purchase they are several cents advance was the question. They have undoubtedly bought a heavy amount already and that is now moving out of this country. The weather was fine in England to-day and a continuance may bring their crops forward. The Mark Lane Express says: "On the continent of Europe the season is relatively as betward as he first in the British land of the weather than the series of the se

CHANGED HIS MIND.

GEORGE W. REID ON THE BACK IN THE BREACH-OF-PROMISE CASE.

for Miss Annie Galvin-Some Shameful Ad-missions-His Broken Vow of Celibacy-A Dainty Valentine - Other Evidences

The Galvin-Reid breach-of-promise and seduction case continues to be the leading at-traction at the Court-house. Judge Horner called the law docket this morning and the the trial was resumed with the cross-examination of George W. Reid, the efendant. He is a member of the oil firm of Grattan, Reid & Co. His partner, Mr. Chas rattan, admitted on cross-examination that he had interested himself as a business man in the settlement of Miss Galvin's suit against Mr. Reid and called upon her for that purpose. She declined to entertain any propo-sition of that kind without consulting

She declined to entertain any proposition of that kind without consulting her attorneys, who, expected compensation for the work already done.

THE DEFENDANT'S STORY.

The climax of interest was attained when the defendant was called to the stand, and the court-room, the largest under the dome, was crowded in every part, the sheriff being compelled at intervals to clear a passage way for the egress and ingress of witnesses. Ladies occupied all the seats near the open windows, and absolute slience prevailed when Charles P. Johnson, for the defense, commenced to examine Mr. Reid. He affected an air of composure, although it was evident at times that he was ill at ease, especially during the scathing cross-examination of Robert S. MacDonald. His responses were given in an undertone, as he rocked the witness-chair and kept his face toward the Jury. Repeatedly he was called upon by counsel for the plaintiff to speak louder. Miss Galvin sat between R. S. MacDonald and John O'Grady, with her attention riveted upon the answers of the witness. She occasionally glanced at the jury to observe the effect of those answers, and when delicate details were given she buried her face in her handkerchief, and more than once gave way to tears. At other intervals she brightened up and leaning forward, with R. S. MacDonald's flowing locks fanning her brow, vigorously prompted that attorney with pointed questions to put to her former lover.

FRIENDS FOR TRAIRS.

Mr. Reid testified that he had known Miss Galvin for several years. He had called upon her at her residence and had met her away from home. Of late years the meetings were away from her home. She was employed at one time by the Beef Canning, Company, and he would meet her and walk home with her of an evening. He also met her at the residence of his uncle, Mr. Ryan, on North Third street. He was acquainted with her folks and her female friends. At one time by was paying some atention to Miss Maggle Dolan, a friend of Miss Galvin, but that young lady or promise of any kind. She could not have understood from his attentions that he ever contemplated marriage. At the time that he called upon Miss Galvin five or six years ago she encouraged him to improper relations by her familiarities. They used to sit of an evening on the back steps, and at Miss Galvin's own solicitation the would spend the remainder of the evening in the stable-loft. This conduct was repeated several times for years. She importuned him at one time to recommend her to a doctor. She gave him a pair of slippers and he returned the compliment. He admitted having sent Miss Galvin some valentines, and reconized one with a pretty blue fringe border which contained the following lines:

A DELICATE MISSIVE.

And then winous coulst my constant one You'll seek a new Valeatine.

Mr. Reld said that he had once taken Miss Galvin to the circus, and on three occasions he escorted her to the theater. He only remembered three occasions when he took her out buggy-riding. He might have said one day that he would never get married while his mother lived, but he had since changed his mind and was now married. This is a free country and he did as he pleased. He admitted having written letters to Miss Galvin and having received letters from her. It was not his custom in writing business letters to sign "ever yours," although he regarded his notes to Miss Galvin began to address notes to him soon after he had made up his mind that it would be better for both parties to abandon their improper relations and seek new friendships.

THE WITNESSES. THE WITNESSES.

The remaining witnesses summoned for the defense are Mr. and Mrs. Johnson, the mother and stepfather of the plaintiff; Erastus Reid, brother of the defendant; Edward Galvin, William Kottsleper, A. Ryan, Dr. Porter and Dr. Fitzporter. The latter did not respond when his name was first called. The case will scarcely reach the jury before to-morrow.

THE STRIKE OF THE PLANING MILL HANDS AND PURNITURE MEN.

The Manufacturers Will Not Yield-Meeting of the Strikers-The Coal Miners' Conven tion-Chicago Strikers Enjoined-Bos Sued-Labor News.

held a two-hours' meeting this morning with closed doors, at the St. Louis Hall, Broadway and Biddle street. They decided to stand firm for eight hours to constitute a day's work. Their only want, they say, is eight hours for a day's work without an increase in pay; or, in other words, they say, is eight hours for a day's work without an increase in pay; or, in other words, eight hours' pay for sight hours' work.

The planing-mill men are thoroughly organized under the Order of the Knights of Labor. They are divided into two assemblies—400 machine hands and 200 bench hands. The Knights of Labor, however, had nothing to do whatever in bringing about the strike.

Resolutions were adopted at this morning's meeting to the effect that eight hours' work and eight hours' pay was all that was wanted. A committee was empowered to lay the paper before the manufacturers this afternoon. Sessions will be held at the same hall every morning until the trouble is settled.

The Great Western Planing-mill on Anna and Broadway has shut down, shuting out about seventy-five men. At the Jas. Haffern Manufacturing Company's mill, forty of the men are out and they are running light with only a few men at work. The eight men who walked out at Cole & Glass' mill, on Pitteenth and Market are still out, two of their places were filled this morning by new men. The firm intends to work ten hours or more. At Phillibert & Johanning's, on Sixteenth and Market, everything is quiet and they are running with what men they have, a tew of the strikers having come back this morning.

At the St. Louis Manufacturing Company the planing inill men are still out and the firm reused to listen to less than ten hours a day. About seventy-five men are out at the St. Louis Planing Mill, there being some fifteen at work. The firm thinks that they will be running with a full complement next week.

Oloott & Duross on North Broadway are running with about thirty men, about eighty of the men being out.

The Furniture-Workers' Fight.

The long threatened strike of the furniture orkers is in progress to-day. While not exactly in the way of a clean sweep, the principal factories closed down last night. The cipal factories closed down last night. The great center for furniture factories of the city is in North St. Louis.

The John H. Conrades Company, Second and Tyler streets, closed this morning, throwing out 250 men. The Vornbock works, Secand Tyler streets, is also shut down. This establishment has fifty men generally employed.

The Deltridge works, Second and Chamber streets, employing fifty men, is also closed. It is the same identical trouble in this trade as in that of the planing mill men. The men insist on eight hours for a day's work, while the manufacturers are equally as determined on ten hours for eday's work. in that of the planing-mill men. The men insist on eight hours for a day's work, while the manufacturers are equally as determined on ten hours for a day's work.

The Koenig works, Second and Montgomery streets, closed down early yesterday morning, leaving out fifty men. Mr. Frank Prange, business manager of the Prange furniture works, Eleventh near Angelrodt streets, says that he has not nor does he propose to be a party to the existing or any other combination that the manufacturers may form. His force of 100 men are perfectly satisfied with the present system in force at the works. Some are working eight hours, while others are working eight hours. The present condition of affairs in this interest may be considered a lockout on both sides.

Col. John Conrades of the Conrades Company, in expressing his views of the difficulty, was very frank to say that he could yet be considered on the "fence" in the fight, as he had yet decided to follow no definite policy, although his works had closed. This company's is the second largest in the West, hence their final decision will be much of a factor either in the settlement or continuance. Said a journeyman to day to a Post-Disparch reporter: "All the men, 700 in number, now 'out,' are strictly union men. In other cities unions of the same kind are in force. I think manufacturers cannot hope to draw on men in the trade from outside of St. Louis. Again, we are determined te resist. If the furniture manufacturers expect to run their factories without our heip, they will have to have raw hands all around and break in apprentices."

The Coal Miners' Convention The second day's session of the National Coal Miners' Convention was held to-day at the Garfield House on Thirteenth and Market the Garfield House on Thirteenth and Market streets. The meeting was held in executive session, only delegates to the convention being admitted. A resolution requesting the Secretary of the convention to make application to the General Executive Board of the Knights of Labor for admission to the order as a National District Assembly of coal miners, was unanimously adopted and the Secretary was accordingly instructed to make out thencessary papers and forward them to General Secretary Frederick Turners, of the Knights of Labor at Philadelphis. The assembly then proceeded with its organization by the election of officers.

The delegates expect to adjourn finally this evening.

THE MILWAUKEE TROUBLE. A Bold Statement by the Organ of the MILWAUKER, Wis., May 21 .- A sensation has been caused here by the publication of a transation of an article that appeared Sunday in Der Volksblatt, Robert Schilling's labor paper. It was translated for the purpose of being placed before the Grand-jury. The arti-cle occupied a column and a haif of Der Volkscle occupied a column and a half of Der Volksblatt. The first portion was devoted to a resume of the events preceding the march on Bay View. Continuing, Schilling says: "Appearances were as if the plans of the Governor, the Sheriff and the officers of the militia were to cause bloodshed. The militia had orders to shoot to kill, and an officer is reported to have said that he would shoot down any man who would aim high. The militia, informed of the approach of the column was ready for firing, and when the column was yet three squares—the commanding officer himself admits two squares from the troops—the commander motioned with his hand. They were not in speaking distance and words would have availed nothing. As the column did not stop, the commanding officer gave the order to "fire." Several volleys—not onewer fired, and five men were killed and many others wounded. The firing was unjustifiable and cruel. To say it in plain German, it "was cowardly, premeditated murder." The most guilty man is the old Know Nothing, Jerry Rusk, by the grace of the ignorant people the Governor of Wisconsin, who gave the order "to shoot to kill," perhaps for the reason that a few more or less "foreigners" would not amount to much. The advisers of force and bloodshed are not found among the anarchists alone. Every one in Milwankee in the last few days had opportunities to see that there are more bloodhounds among the capitalists and business men than among laborers, though reason maintained itself smong all classes. Sheriff Pashen is said to have expressed regrets that fifty or one hundred of the scoundrels had not been shot fown. Hundreds declared that the rioters had their dues." blatt. The first portion was devoted to a

AN INTERESTING SUIT.

A Cigar Firm Brings Suit Against Knights of Labor for Boycotting.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., May 21.—A suit now being prepared, and which will make its appearance in the courts within a few days, promises to be of much importance to business men and to the laboring classes, inasmuch as it will decide the question of liability of individual members of labor unions for damage sustained by a firm against whom the union may have conducted a boycott. The suit referred to is to be brought by H. Segnitz & Co., proprietors of a large cigar factory, against members of the Executive Board of the Enights of Labor of this district. About few months ago the Knights of Labor inaugurated a boycott against Segnitz & Co.,

and distributed circulars in which was violated an agreement with the Knights of Labor in discharging Knights and filling treir places with men not members of the order, and other things objectionable to the labor organization. Segnitz & Co. have letters from cigar dealers, in which the latter refuse to handle the Segnitz cigars, as the boycott against the firm will prevent a sale of the goods. Mr. Segnitz and his attorney are satisfied that action for damages can be sustained under rulings of the Supreme Court.

CHICAGO, May 21 .- Judge Garnett has ren ion in an eagerly watched case continuing the injunction secured against Furniture-Makers Union, No. 1, and about Furniture-Makers Union, No. 1, and about fifty employes of the furniture firm of Bruschke & Ricke. The injunction was secured to restrain the defendants from molesting and intimidating workmen at the Bruschke & Ricke factory or from congregating around it. The motion to dissolve the injunction was based on the claim that the court had no jurisdiction to interfere in a case which did not call for police interference, and if the acts of the defendants were gross enough to be criminal it was the duty of the police to arrest them. Judge Garnett declined to share that view and cited a number of English and American authorities to show that a Court of Chancery had the right to interfere to protect the property of citizens and their rights.

Schnoble was arrested a few days after the Haymarket riot, but as he told a pretty straight story he was released. Now the State's Attorney is eager to see the man again. He is supposed to have left town. At the time of the man's appearance Manager Tuller of Pribyl Bros., notified Comptroller Guerney of the fact that the anarchists were negotiating for the purchase of weapons, but no action was taken in the matter.

would be made, and that witness had intimated it would be opportune if made during his absence.

Witness positively declared that there had been no such intimations.

Mr. Ranney read from Mr. Briesen's account of his interview with the Attorney-General, and witness smiled at certain points in the reading.

"What did those four men wans?" inquired Mr. Ranney, referring to the visit of Briesen and the others to the Department.

"I have stated about thirteen times," said the witness. "but will state it again, if you wish. What they really wanted I don't know; what they said they wanted was: "We want the name of the United States to test the Bell Telephone patent." I remarked, in reply, that I could not consider the application; that I was a stockholder and attorney for a rival company.

Then there was a question or two about the procedure. I don't remember what they were. I was determined to cut the matter off, and I may have been a little abrupt, I am afraid." Witness said he wished to say a word about the testimony of Col. Dana of the New York Sun, "where in answer to Mr. Millard's question he had said that if he (Mr. Dana) had been in his (witness) place he would have protected his department against this suit that he would have smashed it. While he cured little about the matter he might sao a word in reply. It had been conceded that he was not the proper authority to act in the matter, on account of his being a stockholder in a rival company, and his relationship to the country had not changed in his absence from July to October, when he found the being a stockholder in a rival company, and his relationship to the country had not changed in his absence from July to October, when he found the action had been taken. The same disability existed as when he declined to act in the first instance. If that same disability existed, then he put the question to Col. Dana, and the committee, how he could have smashed the suit if he did not have the ability to institute it."

The Chairman—Your view was that you had no power to interfere at all?"
Witness—Not at all. I have not been denuded of my disability.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 21.-The death of Mrs. Pendleton will be a great shock to Washington society, in whose circles she was well known. In official circles it is not believed Mr. Pendleton will resign his foreign mission, although those who know him well personally, shake their heads and say that it is more than likely. One of Mr. Pendleton's daughters is with him in Berlin. His son is practicing law in New York. The only o ther child is the young lady who was with Mrs. Pendleton, yesterday, and who was severely injured in the same accident in which she met her death. It is expected Mr. Pendleton will return to his home immediately and remain there until his dansh.

NEW YORK YACHT CLUB BEGATTA COMMIT-THE ENTERTAINED BY JAY GOULD.

A Clever Trick Spoiled by the Umpire-The New Yorks Arrive Minus a Couple of Catch-ars-Gossip of the Diamond.

By Telegraph to the Post-Disparces.

New York, May 21.—The steam yacht Atalanta lay yesterday morning at the end of the wharf at the foot of West Twenty-fifth street. She was bound on an excursion. At her fore was flying the pennant of the American Tacht Club with its Maltese cross. From time to time, singly and by twos and threes, well-dressed gentlemen went to the gangway and presented their credentials to an officer on the yacht. Their names were checked off on a little list which he held. All this time from the main cross-trees there was flying a square blue flag, as a notice to all yachtsmen that the Shackford, who commands the Atalanta, rightly judged that his guests for the day, not having had a "seafarin" eddication," would one and all come to the vessel with boots the fresh polish of which, unless guarded against, might soil the decks of the vessel, so a broad matting was stretched. ight soil the decks of the vessel, so a broad atting was stretched across it. At exactly 5:80, the time set for the yacht to start, there same a little man to the gangway dressed very plainly in a neat business suit, and although he presented no credentials he was permitted to go on board: "We had nearly gone without you," said Mr. Thomas Manning, one of the regatta committee of the club, who had the yacht in charge. The little man pulled out his watch with some show of exuitation and said:

"You see I am exactly on time, and I walked down, too, all the way."
"From Irvington?" said Manning.
"No, not as far as that, but from my house in the city."
The little man was Jay Gould and he owned the yacht, but on the present occasion he seemed to regard himself as a guest. He had been on board fully four minutes before he was noticed by who at once sprang to the halliards and hauled down the blue flag At about 10 o'clock a gentieman asked:

"When do you propose to start, Mr. Gould?"

"I will go and ask Mr. Hall," was the reply, and returning shortly afterward he said: "Mr. Hall says that there are one or two gentiemen invited who have not yet arrived, but he promises to start very soon." At 10:15 o'clock the yacht left the wharf and went up, the river sided by the last of the flood tide and going by the land at the rate of nineteen miles an hour. She is probably the fastest steam yacht in the world, and Mr. Gould is justly proud of her. Last summer when the American Yacht Club had its annual regatts, one of the Messrs. Cramp of Philadelphia, who built the Atalants, said to Mr. Gould: "Our new boat, No. 246, will, we think, best her in this race." "If she does," said Mr. Gould, with calm confidence in his boat, "I will take No. 246 at any price you may name."

Mr. Gould was not called upon to invest further in steam yachts, for the Atalanta went by the Pequot an easy winner, beating everything in the fleet. Mr. Gould seemed to enjoy yesterday's experience. He passed along from one group to another, and if he found any one looking lonely he stopped to point out to him objects of interest on shore.

"That," he was heard to say as the Atlanta passed a fine-looking schooner "was once the unfortunate yacht Mohawk. She is now called the Aeger, and is in the coast survey service. I have been told by some of the officers who have sailed on her that he is an extremely fine vessel and a good see boat."

"That house yonder, among the trees," he said to another guest, "with the tall flagstaff on it, is Greystone, where Mr. Tilden lives." And so from group to group Mr. Gould passed seemingly delighted to be rid of all responsibility and free to enjoy himself as guest of the regatta committee. The committee were excerting themselves very successfully to give Mr. Gould and other guests a pleasant sail. Of the fifty-seven people invited only seven were absent.

way of novelty, and his invitation was accepted. On the way up the river the guests roamed at will through the yacht, which below is one of the finest in the world. She has eight large sleeping apartments, elegantly, uphoistered forward, and in Mr. Gould's room amidship the limit of the decorator's art seems to have been reached. In exactly one hour and three minutes the yacht ran nineteen miles from the start to Covington and was then anchored, while the party landed to inspect Mr. Gould's place at Lyndhurst. On the shore Mr. Gould took charge of the party and showed them through his house, which was vacant, his family being in town. From there he led the way to his conservatory, and here he exhibited with evident pride the finest collection of rare plants that is to be found in the world. He showed an intimate acquaintance with each of his plants and flowers. Evidently they were his especial pets. From here the party was sed through immense vineyards inclosed under glass domes, where rich clusters of grapes were nanging. Then the stables were visited and inspected, and then the party re-embarked and the yacht's head was once more turned up the river. The regatta committee with some satisfaction were now shown what the steward of the Atsianta could do in the way of lunch, the whole half-hundred of gnestabeling accommodated in the spacious saloon of the yacht. There was, of course,

Commodore Hoagland proposed the health of Mr. Gould. In reply Mr. Gould said that he had a speech all prepared, but it was too long and he would reserve it for some future occasion. Mr. J., the added, rather ruefully, "Jay Gould always was doing just the thing that you didn't expect him to do and this is only another instance of it," at which Mr. Gould laughed as heartily as any one. Off West Point the Atsianta sainted with her two guns and having run a mile or so above, once more turned down the river, just before the city was reached a book was produced by the Regatta Committee and the autographs of all on board were there inscrib Umpire Eagan to decide the point that the Marcon's second baseman had played for. Poorman was on third. Radbourne on second. Capt. Morrill on first, and Burdock at the bat. The latter sent a little fly to Fred, who dropped the ball directly he caught it, threw it to McKinnon at first, and, the ball going to second, claimed that he had Morrill out, inasmuch as he had not touched the bag after the fly was caught, and claiming also that Burdock was out on the fly. The umpire gave Poorman a run and declared Burdock out at first. A delay of about fifteen minutes was had, after which Duniap resumed play, Umpire Eagan declaring if the delay continued that he would give the game to the Bostons. Duniap, however, before going back to the field said that nothing else was to be done but to play and protest the game. Morrill stated to a Poer-Dispartur reporter that Duniap was a "way off" and said he would refer to the audience as to whether he was on the bag or not. Duniap of course denied what Morrill claimed and referred to the rules of the League as authority for his kick.

Gen. Butler Cleverly Avoids an Expose in Divorce Suit.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH. pointed everybody who expected yesterday ar expose of one of the most sensational scandals since the Beecher-Tilton case. It has been known for some months that a startling story Brigham. Robert B. Brigham, the owner of Brigham. Mobert B. Brigham, the owner of the Hollis Street Theater and of an immense fortune, charges his wife with adultery with a New York millionaire. No one could ascertain the name of the corespondent, and owing to Gen. Entier's cleverness the case has been finished and no one knows it yet except Judge Allen, who presided. Her husband took the stand when the case was called yesterday, and testified he had lived in Boston forty years. He married Frances, his wife, on November 17, 1870, and lived with her in the same house up to 1878. A libel for divorce was filed in March, 1875, upon evidence of his wife's infidelity, of which, however, he knew nothing direct, but learned through one Johnson, whom he employed to investigate at Saratoga, where his wife was in the habit of making flying and prolonged visits. His wife is considerably younger than himself. This was all the husband was required to testify to.

Gen. Butler then said: "May it please your Honor, my witnesses consist of these depositions, and I am content to submit them to your Honor. It will take considerably less time for your Honor to read them than to hear the evidence." The Court acquiseced, and a huge bundle of depositions were submitted.

It is learned that Mr. Brigham was forced to the Hollis Street Theater and of an immense Yesterday, while on the train homeward bound, Carter walked up to Roe homeward bound, Carter walked up to Roe placed a revolver against his temple and blew his brains out. When the train stopped at Morehead some one in the crowd yelled: "Give him West Virginia justice." While they were preparing to lynch Carter some one fixed a double-barrel gun at the culpit, but missed him. During the confusion Carter started to run and was followed by a shower of builets, one of which struck him and he fell. The mob jumped on his body and kicked him and left him for dead. Carter was picked up and taken to Huntington. He cannot live.

record in comparison with an Administration which carries such an Attorney-General as Garland.

Col. Fred Grant and his wife have been in Washington for a brief visit. I saw the Colonel for a few moments yesterday. He is in splendid health. He still wears the black crepe badge of mourning for his father about his left arm. He says that the family are well pleased with their decision made last summer as to the resting place for Gen. Grant. It has been said in various newspapers that there was a prospect of Gen. Grant to the resting place for Gen. Grant. It has been said that there was not a shadow of truth in this. He said: "There are a great many special reasons for having father buried in New York. It was his home and it was where he had received more personal kindness and heip than anywhere eise. The place where he is buried is more within the reach of the plain people than would have been any place in Washington. If father had been buried at the Soldiers' Home in Washington few people would have visited the grave or would have had an opportunity for so doing. There are more people who visit father's grave in New York now in one day than would go to it in such a place as the Soldiers' Home in a year. Sundays as many as thirty or forty thousand people go, even now, to the tomb at Riverside Park, and I never early or stormy, but what I have found others there."

This remarkable respect and attention paid to the resting place of Gen. Grant to Washington there were certain difficulties in the way which were not known at the time of his death to the general public. Congress was not in session, and without its authority not a single foot of the public reservations could have been occupied. There was no one in Washington at that time who would have had authority to give Mrs. Grant the assurance that she could be buried at the side of her husband. Outside of this there was a strong factional fight between two classes of people in Washington at that time who would have had authority to give Mrs. Grant the second at th

Col. Grant says that there were 360,000 orders taxen for the first volume of his father's works. Only 325,000 were printed of the first volume to fill these orders, as a number fell out through inevitable loss attendant upon the subscription system of selling books. Not every one who bought the first volume has taken the second. The publishers estimate that 300,000 will supply the first demand for the second book. Other editions will be printed to meet the future demands. Over 600,000 volumes have been sold. I have understood from a friend of the publishers that the sale of this book will not to Mrs. Grant in the neighborhood of three quarters of a million of dollars. She receives $1.40 upon each volume. Gen. Dr. Coues the distinguished Smithsonian professor, who is at the head of the Theosophists in this country, made a very remarkable statement to me the other day, just after the World had printed my brief personal sketch of him. I asked him a number of questions seeking an explanation of his going into the field of mysticism. For years he has been a materialist. I was curious to learn how he had passed over to the other extreme. Dr. Coues said that he was led into it through a scientific investigation of Spiritualism. He found much in that that was astonishing and comprehensible. From that he has passed to the advanced field of Theosophy. Two or three years ago when he was in London he was associated with Mme. Blavateky and Mr. Oloott. Through them he was initiated into the inner circles of Theosophy. When he returned to this country he found himself suddenly placed at the head of the Theosophists in this country. I asked him if he claimed that he could project his astral body. He said that he claimed nothing in regard to it. It was his friends who had made these claims. Several of his friends had seen his astral form as a distance when his real body was known to be in another place. Dr. Coues was asked if he had found anything in this field of mysticism which could be proved to any of his scientific associates. He said no. No scientific mas without four or five years' preparation would be prepared to indied of the conversation. He was asked if he found anything of a satisfactory character in the field of Spiritualism or Theosophy. He replied: "No; there is nothing in it to satisfy any one. The happiest people are those who have never touched it. I am tired of the whole thing and intend to resign my connection with the Theosophists very soon. I find that I have all the fools, all the cranks, all the soft-headed people of this country hanging on to my ocat tails. T

A repetition of last week's concert by four principal choirs was given last evening in the Second Baptist Church under direction of Prof. E. M. Bowman. There was a fair audience but the merit of ment, much like Mendelssohn's psalm—s laborious and uncompensating work. Upon a recall Prof. Bowman played an exquisite luilaby by Guilmant in a way that was thoroughly artistic and delighting.

Master Theodore Splering played a concerto by Mendelssohn (orchestral part on the organ by Prof. Bowman in a way that was simply wonderful. Splering's violin with Bowman's accompaniement was, in point of merit, something rare in St. Louis concerts.

The last half of the programme was given to Abt's cantata for women's voices, "The Hermit's Harp." It is a light and graceful work and withal musicianly as well as melodious. It was sung by a royal combination of voices, and the chorus effects were superlatively charming. The solos seemed to have been distributed among the performers less by careful design than by chance, and chance did not always alight in the right place.

Prof. Bowman's organ accompaniments left nothing to be desired. They sustained without obscuring, embelfished without disparaging, the vocal effect. The resources of Mr. Bowman's favorite instrument have rarely been employed to better advantage.

As a whole the concert was among the most worthy and enjoyable entertainments the present season has produced.

It appears now that, dive days after his appointment by Judge Parker, in Kingston, the affairs of the Broadway Road had been in process of winding up, under the provision of law for more than two weeks, and that the men who are really in control of the road and its property are in no sense parties to the suit brought by the Attorney-General, and will refuse to give up anything on the demand of Mr. O'Brien. While the legislation at Albany for annuling the charter was in progress, the directors of the road, aided by cool and clear-headed law-yers, were busy building fences around the property to ward off trespassers, and if they have not succeeded in placing it permanently beyond the reach of Receiver O'Brien, they have certainty laid the foundation for a long contest in the courts, which will delay the sale of a frauchise, as provided by the new law, for a long time.

ones who furnish material for the quick development of many aliments. Susceptible to changes in weather, feeble digestion, limited changes in weather, feeble digestion, limited strength and energy, nervousness and disturbed sleep, they are soon led to some serious disease. For the cure of this difficulty many medical authorities have agreed that a pure stimulant is the best thing, but it is not only desirable but absolutely necessary, to get the best results and a cure, that the whiskey should be free from fusel oil and all other adultarations. The Duffy's Para Mais other adulterations. The Duffy's Pure Mais Whiskey is an absolutely pure article, so de-clared to be by eminent chemists who have analyzed it, and taken alone at meals, or in connection with our Consumption Formula, a marked increase in weight is obtained which is permanent and healthful. CINCINNATI, HAMILTON & DATTON TRANS-FORTATION OFFICE, TOLEDO, OHIO.

Gentlemen—The benefit that I have derived from the use of Duffy's Pure Mais Whiskey and formula has surpassed my most sanguine expectations. I concluded using your formula about four weeks ago and in about a week the cough had entirely disappeared; since then I have not been troubled with a cough. I gained about 7 pounds in three weeks. After using the formula about two weeks every one of my acquaintances noticed a decided improvement in my appearance, and they all said that I was getting fat and that I never looked so well. I am recommending your whisky and formula to all my friends, and I have written out the formula for four or five persons who are troubled with bad colds. My parents think, and I think so myself, that I would have had the consumption but for the timely use of your whiskey and formula. So you may judge from this letter what benefit I have derived from the use of your whiskey.

Office Of THE UNITED STATES EQUALING

OFFICE OF THE UNITED STATES BOLLING Gentlemen—I got your recipe for the ourse of consumption, and commenced taking some at once, in connection with Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, and in four weeks I made a gain of 7 pounds. I weighed the day I commenced taking the same and again last Saturday evening on same scale and with same clothing on. My weight was at first 168 pounds and last weight 118 pounds. I feel much stronger; cough not so bad. I have also taken the whiskey in milk at night. I can say with pleasure that I seel at least 100 per cent better than before I began taking your recipe.

A. A. HOWARD,

LIBERTY AND TWENTY-THIRD STS., PITTS-BURG, PA.

Gentlemen—I have used your Duffy's Fure Mait Whiskey for the purpose, as I thought, of indigestion. I had a queer feeling about the stomach. Since using your whiskey have never been troubled, and besides. I have in the four weeks gained 4 good pounds in weight. I justfeel hearty and can see what a great change it has brought about for me.

JAMES WHITESIDE.

Gentlemen—I will say truthfully that for the short time that I have been using Dufty's Pure Mait Whiskey it has done me more good than anything that I have ever used. My complaint is dyspepsia and general deblity. I have used all kinds of patent medicines, but they did me no good, and was about to give it up has a bad job, as I was about discouraged. I know when I commenced taking it I weighed 145 pounds. I now weigh 1804 pounds, which I consider doing more than well in five weeks. I have been troubled with dyspepsis and indigestion for the past seven years; my atomach was very weak and appetite middling.

I have improved rapidly since taking your purty's Pure Mais Whiskey and formula. I was a great sufferer from indigation and severe pains in my chest and back, and now they have almost entirely disappeared. My family are also taking both and have derived much benefit. I heartily recommend it to the general public, and feel sure they will be benefitted by it. I have gained it pounds in four weeks. It does not seem possible, but it is all owing to Duffy's Pure Mait Whiskey. There is nothing to equal it.

shot and killed in the alley between Twelfth and Thirteenth and Franklin avenue and Wash street. The testimony showed that Fisher had been in the habts of visiting the wife of Henry Williams during the husband's absence, and that on the day of the killing he had been ordered out of the house by Williams, who had returned unexpectedly and found him there. Fisher laid around the alley for Williams with a big knife all day and was advancing on him when he was shot. The Coroner's jury acquitted Williams of all blame in the matter, and Mr. Dierkes refused to issue a warrant for him and ordered his discharge.

THE CHURCH COLUMN.

A NEW BISHOP TO BE CHOSEN AT THE DIO-CESAN CONVENTION NEXT WEEK.

in the diocese six months will be entitled to a seat. Lay delegates will be chosen in the proportion of one to fiftymembers, but no more than five from each parish will be allowed. Mount Calvary is first in the field with its delegates, which are as follows: Principals, Hon. Alex G. Cochrane, Roger Hayne, Gilbert Elliott, George M. Wright, Dr. E. W. Saunders; alternates, Wm. L. Maury, S. E. McGregory, Lewis Lipman, L. G. Harris and Wm. Schaffner.

Never before did the diocese of Missouri ensplit into two hostile camps over the Jardine case, and half a dozen important parishes without rectors, the actual prospect is peoples the background with possibilities born of anger and resentment, the sky takes on a very black appearance.

The very important task falls to this convention of selecting a successor to the late Bishop Robertson, which will prove the most difficult work of the session, provided it is taken up and not shirked. The convention will also be called upon to pass resolutions on the late Bishop and elect a new standing committee, in doing either of which it may open up the Jardine affair afresh. In the matter of the standing committee, it is not very clear where the timber is coming from to compose the new body, and some pretty lively hunting through the diocesan fields will take place.

THE NEW RELIGIOUS MOVEMENT.
To-night at 80 'clock the first of a series of five lectures will be given at Memorial Hall, Nineteenth street and Lucas place, by W. L. Sheldon of New York on the theme: "The Possibilities of a New Religious Movement in America." This course is got up by a number of St. Louis citizens interested in the ethical movement as developed in New York, Chicago and Philadelphia, and they have invited Mr. Sheldon, one of its leading exponents, to explain the principles of the movement. Mr. Sheldon is scarcely behind Felix Adler as an expounder of this new school, and is original in thought and finished as a speaker. His visit, his friends say, will mark an era in the religious efforts of the summer in St. Louis. Mr. Sheldon's second lecture will be given at the same place on Wednesday, the 26th, at 8 p. m., on "The Old and the New Frophecy," and his third on Sunday, the 30th, at 11 a. m., on "The New Basis for Religious Organization."

Central Christian Church, Chicago, have renewed their solicitations of Rev. Calvin S. Bisckwell of this city to accept the call to that church. This pressure has been quite steady for several months, and it is not at all unlikely that this time it will be successful. In March the first call was received, but last Sunday the Chicago congregation passed another, with renewed expressions of earnestness.

Exmembering The Bishop's death a paper was circuisted looking to the raising of $10,000 for the purchase of a residence for his family. According to the plan proposed by the Evangelical Alliance for down-town preaching, Rev. Dr. J. G. Merrill of the First Congregational Church will preach at Eleventh and Locus streets, the old Y. M. Sunday there will be first communion services at the Catholic churches of Sts. Peter and Faul, on Allen avenue; St. Nicholas, Nineteenth street and Lucas avenue, and St. Agatha's. Ninth and Utah streets. On Sunday week similar services will be held at St. Henry's, on California avenue, at 8a. m.; St. Boniface's, Carondelet; and St. Vincent's. At the latter church Archbishop Kenrick will administer confirmation at the same service.

A practical illustration has come to hand of the truth of a statement the late Dr. Goodell once made at the Evangelical Alliance when it was discussing 'Down'-Nown Churches,' to this effect: 'As soon as you convert one of these sinners and he gets his face washed, he moves to the Western portion of the city.' The Southern Methodists of Missouri have been honored by the selection of one of their number to sit on the Episcopal bench. But this action of the General Conference now sitting at Richmond was scarcely a surprise to the Southern Methodists of the West, since the Post-Disparch two years ago announced that Rev. Dr. E. R. as an Attorney at Law. Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

ALBANY, May 21.—Miss Kate Stoneman was admitted to practice as an attorney and coun-sellor at law by the General Term of the Supreme Court yesterday. She is the first woman who has ever been admitted to practice in this State. Miss Stoneman has an interesting history. She is the sister of Gov. Stoneman of California, and Judge Edward Stoneman of the Supreme Court of Illinois, Stoneman of California, and Judge Edward Stoneman of the Supreme Court of Illinois, and a relative of ex-Senator Williams, an eminent lawyer at Buffalo. She is a woman of fine presence, and distinguished for social graces and mental endowments. She has devoted her entire life to the woman suffrage movement, and, although still youthful (she is but 33) has attained high rank and distinction among the promoters of the movement. Three years ago the lady, then as at the present time, first teacher in the State Normal School, filed her certificate as a law student in the office of W. D. Frothingham and went vigorously to work in the prosecution of her studies. One week ago, at the general term in Albany, she applied for admission at the bar with a number of male students. The gentieman appointed to examine the applicants praised her highly, and recommended that the general term admit her to practice. That body declined to do so, inasmuch as there was no precedent governing the case. In order to meet this case, Mrs. Lillie D. Blake and another woman suffragist caused a bill to be introduced in the Assembly two months ago removing from women all disabilities in the practice of law. John J. Baker of Dutchess fathered the bill and secured its passage. On Tuesday it was brought up in the Senate and passed that body. Wednesday the general term entered an order admitting Miss Stoneman to practice. Mr. Hamilton Wilcox who had been the champlon of the movement, Miss Susan A. King and Mrs. Dr. Lozier and Miss Elizabeth Cady Stanton, all sent telegrams to Gov. Hill last evening, thanking him for his prompt action. Among other lady practitioners in the country are Miss Flotzof California, and Belva Lockwood of the District of Columbia.

MRS. THURBER'S PLAN.

WHAT THE COMBINATION OF A WOMAN AND AN IDEA CAN DO.

he Effect a Serious Aim Has on the Fem nine Mind-A Refreshing Experience Several Impressions of the Originator of American Opera-A Broad Guage Scheme-The Formation of an Auxiliary Board a

It is retreshing to find a woman with an aim in life above society, a spring bonnet, a new dress, the servant girl question or the cook book. It is fortunate that few woman hit upon serious aims outside of the circles of society and domesticity. They are frequently maelstroms to them. They throw their whole souls into to them. They throw their whole souls into them and are carried away by enthusiasms and impulses. Hence the quieter devotions are bet-ter for digestion and are generally more con-ducive to solid comfort. Not always, but gen-

A big idea acts differently on a woman and on a man. A man treats it calmiy and coolly, weigha it, discusses it, hears objections to it, and is even capable of losing faith in it and throwing it over. A woman never. It possesses and permeates her, becomes part of her. She wraps it up carefully and carries it around with her. She shows it to all of her friends. Her admiration and confidence in it induces admiration and confidence from others. No discouragement is too strong for her faith and no obstacle is too great for her strength. She sweeps everything with her in the current of her own impetuosity.

An idea and woman, particularly if the woman be attractive, intelligent, spirited and determined, are irresistible. They would move the world without a lever.

I have known men to dodge around corners and slip out back doors to have women with good aims miss them. It was their only safety from defeat.

And yet I say it is refreshing to meet a woman with an idea, not a vague, indistinct idea picked up somewhere from somebody, but one that is clearly defined, well-thought out, the difficulty of realizing it carefully considered, and the method and plan of carrying it out intelligently, formed and linked with an earnest purpose, and with this, an abiding faith in its worthiness and ultimate success. She invests it unconsciously with her own charming personality; there is what can only be expressed as a holiness of devotion to it, and her fine faith and enthusiasm are like inspirations. It is as if the windows of one's soul were lifted a little and through them were wafted a breath from the flower gardens of youth, of an atmosphere which has not lost its freshness and purify, and is still fragrant with fine aspirations.

These were some of the impressions I found clinging to me after a talk with Mrs. Thurber. She is a woman with an idea and a purpose—an intelligent idea and a strong purpose. The plan of forming a National Conservatory and the organization of the American Opera Company have been treated as hobbies, pets and playthings of a spoiled woman. Five minutes' talk with Mrs. Thurber will dissolve any such notions.

She strikes one as a woman terribly in earnest, as a woman devoted to art, with a cultivated taste and an unusually acute artistic sense. She is not blindly enthusiastic, and her faith is not unreasonable. While she appreciates the limitation and the obstacles to art accomplishment in this country, she displays a confidence which seems to arise from this very fact and from the assurance that her methods will win in the end. She is a rare combination of the sanguline theorizer and the skilful executor.

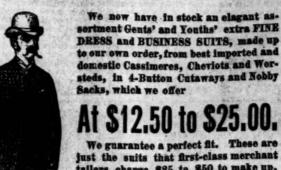

One cannot help acknowledging a feeling of mingled wonder and admiration while listening to her conversation. There is an exhiliration, a pervasive atmosphere of all-will-bewell around her which houces confidence. The wonder arises that a woman situated as Mrs. Thurber is, with wealth, position, a And yet I say it is refreshing to meet a ployment afforded to hundreds of persons are not meonaiderable."

That the pian is thoroughly national and is not confined to any one city is shown in the work of organizing auxiliary boards in the principal cities in which Mrs. Thurber is now engaged. The future is outlined in Mrs. Thurber's own words:

Enough has already been accomplished to demonstrate that many things which a year are were considered impossible were in reality feasible, and are to-day a fact. It is evident that with a moderate amount of encouragement American Opera will become a permanently useful and beneficial institution. This has induced some of the most active supporters of the present movement to advocate its incorporation with a capital of $500,000, of which more than half of the stock has already been placed in New York, Soston, Philadelphia, etc. The desirability of interesting a large number of persons in an enterprise of this nature—with a labouid funited on the amount of stock taken—with a labouid funited in any case, but considering the solrid and purpose of the entire effect of a necessity.

Interestifying also to note that even financially—selves and worthy of our common country.

This is the general plan as Mrs. Thurber outlined it to the Directors of the Exposition last night. The details of the auxiliary plan, which were perfected by shrewd business men, will be given at a meeting of those interested in the work, to be held in the parlors of the Exposition on Saturday afternoon, at 4 o'clock. Mrs. Thurber believes in enlisting the aid of women in her cause, and it is probable that the local board will contain a leaven of iadies. Few of those who enjoyed the efforts of the American Opera Company will fail to wish success to Mrs. Thurber and her idea.

The report that he had been tendered the latter position is undoubtedly true, but during the past five years Mr. Potter has been made similar offers, some of them being quite as important and tempting, so far as salary and other inducements are concerned, as the one now made, all of which were declined by him.

Bids for the following privileges will be re-ceived up to 8 o'clock p. m., Tuesday, May 25, 1868: Ios cream stand and viene sameage stands, separately. See Want column. BORGELT & JERRALDS.

For several weeks Capt, Mike Walsh ha been receiving anonymous letters dated from St. Louis, informing him that parties had been St. Louis, informing him that parties had been seen fishing in various ponds, lakes and streams in the vicinity with nets, and asking why these violators of the fish law were not punished. Mr. Waish, being one of the directors of the St. Clair Rod and Gun Club, and also an assistant of State Fish Commissioner Bartlett, determined to investigate the truth of the reports he had received, and for the past week has been visiting at intervals the places where it was alleged parties were accustomed to fish with nets. He did not succeed, however, in finding any violators of the fish law, and says that he does not intend in the future to pay any attention to anonymous communications, but if parties who have witnessed a violation of the fish law by others will come forward and give him the information personally, he will see that those who have fished in an unlawful manner will be prosecuted.
